

PRES. LUND GOES TO HIS MASTER

The matter of appointment to fill the vacancy in the first presidency caused by the death of Pres. Lund, rests entirely with President Grant, according to high officials of the church. Richard R. Lyman, a member of the twelve, said yesterday that it was the rule of the church that the president choose his own counselors, subject to approval by the council of the twelve and then to ratification by the members of the church in general conference assembled.

The president, Apostle Lyman, explained, is in no wise bound in making his choice. He may select a counselor from the council of twelve or may pick a man without ecclesiastical rank. The time of making this choice is also, it was stated, a matter that rests with the head of the church.

In tribute to the memory of President Lund the house of representatives of the Utah legislature yesterday adopted the following resolution:

"In the passing to the great beyond of our friend and brother, Anthon H. Lund, the state of Utah has suffered an irreparable loss.

"He served this commonwealth as a constitutional convention member; as a member of the capitol building commission; as a leader in religious thought and as a pillar in the fiscal world.

"In civil, financial or religious realms his integrity was unexcelled; his kindness, his tact, his wisdom and his love stood unequalled.

"In him were all the qualities of worth so blended that he was—as of this earth—a better man.

"We bow our heads in humility at the divine decree and tender our sympathy and condolence to those who are bereft.

"To have had such a noble sire, husband, friend or brother is its own reward.

"May we respectfully recommend that this expression of sympathy and condolence be spread upon the records of our proceedings, and that an engrossed copy be handed to the bereaved family.

President Lund was born at Aalborg, Denmark, May 15, 1844, being the son of Henrik and Anna Christina Anderson Lund. When he was four years of age the mother passed away, and the father then serving his country in the war between Denmark and the Schleswig-Holstein, the small Anthon was left in the care of his grandmother. She immediately placed him in school to begin his education, a career which was not interrupted by his father's return in 1851. At the tender age of seven years young Anthon was advanced to the so-called city schools, where in he gained the first place with its attendant honors five years later.

During the same year in which this latter success came to him he also was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Several years previous to his baptism one of his uncles had joined the church and later his grandmother, too, embraced the new teachings, with the result that Anthon, youngster though he was, read and became interested in the doctrines of the Mormon church.

From that time until he died his labors were in the interest of his church and the devotion and loyalty to his belief have burned as a steady flame.

At the age of thirteen Anthon was called to labor in the Aalborg conference, his duties in this connection being the teaching of English to the emigrating saints, to distribute tracts and to assist the elders in various ways. Then in 1862 came the first great event of his life—the voyage to American shores. His sailing vessel entered New York harbor on May 28 of that year. Accompanied by his grandmother, who had zealously watched over him throughout his youthful years, he traveled by rail and overland to Salt Lake, arriving here September 23 in Bishop C. A. Madsons independent company. After a short time here he went to Sanpete county, the grandmother joining her son at Cedar City.

On a farm near Fairview, Anthon was first employed during the period of three months and then he moved to Mount Pleasant where he found an occupation more suited to his taste and education. John Barton, a citizen of Mount Pleasant, offered him a home in return for the tutoring of the Barton children, a bargain which was quickly accepted. In 1864 his vocation assumed a different turn and he became a teamster, bringing emigrants from the Missouri river to Utah. During the winter months of this year he taught school again and in the following summer he clerked in a store.

In the year 1888 Mr. Lund was made vice president of the Mantle temple, assisting President Daniel H. Wells, and at the death of the president in March, 1891, he was chosen president. His call to the apostleship came in October, 1899.

From 1893 to 1896 he presided over the European mission and in 1897

he visited the Orient in company with F. F. Hintz for the purpose of reorganizing the Turkish mission and selecting a spot for a colony in Palestine. In June, 1898, he returned to Utah. At the close of the year 1899 he was appointed to the position of church historian, to which he succeeded at the demise of Franklin D. Richards, also succeeding him as president of the State Genealogical society. President Lund had been acting as superintendent of religion classes, in which capacity he remained until January, 1919. He was also one of the original members of the general church board of education.

On October 17, 1901, President Lund became one of the first presidents of the church by virtue of his appointment on that date as second counselor to President Joseph F. Smith. In this capacity he served faithfully until his appointment as first counselor to the president of the church at the death of John R. Winder.

ROB ROY DEWITT CHAPTER NOTES

The regular meeting of the local chapter of the National Service Star Legion was held Thursday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce. After the usual business conducted by the president, Mrs. H. C. DeWitt, came the program. Mrs. Wm. M. Howell read most sympathetically "An Afternoon With a Singer." Miss Bee McClellan, instructor of piano and voice at the New Jersey Academy played a piano solo, making very realistic the suggestion with which she introduced her selection, that she invited the audience to go with her to the shore of one of the Swiss lakes. Miss Martin, chairman of the flag committee for the organization presented an elegant American flag, the gift of the chapter from Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt, in recognition of the honor rendered their son, Rob Roy DeWitt, by this chapter when they selected his name for its designation. The name represents also all the men who went into the service from Logan, those who, like him, made the supreme sacrifice, and those who were willing to do so. The flag is an army regulation woolen bunting, mounted upon a standard in proper form for use of the national emblem indoors. Mrs. Charles J. M. Trotman, chairman of the relief committee, made a fitting acceptance speech, quoting a bit of poem written by the sister of the boy on whom had fallen the duty of bringing back a flag captured by the enemy, who was killed in so doing:

Somebody had to get that rag,
So I did.
Somebody had to save our flag,
So I did.
Tell mother not to cry,
I'm not afraid to die,
Somebody had to say goodbye,
So I did.

Mrs. Trotman reported two letters written to Logan men in a hospital. Also proposed a resolution that we patronize American made toys preferably those made by soldiers. The resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote. The girls glee club of the New Jersey Academy sang by special request "Your Flag and My Flag," and furnished for the program a medley of national airs with good spirit and excellent music. A floral tribute of affection and esteem was presented to Mrs. Trotman, former president of the organization. "White carnations for Mother Love and red roses for sacrifice," the president said in giving them to Mrs. Trotman.

The Auditorium was crowded to capacity Thursday evening at the Pioneer ball and dress revue. All who were connected with the production of this splendid affair are entitled to great credit. Lindquist. Dancing was indulged in till 9, then the program began with a colonial dance by a number of the girls in colonial dress under the direction of Mrs. Gibbs. A quartet by Mr. McMurrin, Chas. O. Peterson, Rachel Pederson and Rula Cardon was given. The pioneer dress revue and grand march with the spot light was led by Amy Lyman Merrill and Lizzie O. McKay Hill and about seventy-five ladies in costume. This was the special feature of the evening. "Come, Come Ye Saints" was sung by the audience led by S. B. Mitton. PREPARES PLANTING AT ST. GEORGE

The state wide campaign to add to the attractiveness of Utah by encouraging the laying out of beautiful grounds for public buildings and homes and helping in the planning of city parking systems and public parks started last year by the Utah Agricultural College is proceeding rapidly under the direction of Mr. Emil Hansen, landscape gardening expert of the college. Already this year Mr. Hansen has outlined many new projects and at present he is visiting different sections of the state where his services have been requested. The plans already under way include the planting of several miles of boulevard north of Garland. For this planting Mr. Hansen has selected Blue Ash and Norway Maples. At St. George Mr. Hansen has submitted plans for the L. D. S. temple and has aided in the placing of a large community order for roses to be used by the citizens in beautifying private grounds. Mr. Hansen has also prepared a plan for street planting for St. George.

Plans have also been submitted this year for the grounds of the city hall at Sandy, for the high school campus at Murray, for the grounds at the Murdoch Academy and the library at Beaver, for the L. D. S. church at Holladay, and for the L. D. S. church at Taylorsville. From McCammon, Idaho, has come a request for plans for the high school and the city park. Mr. Hansen is also preparing plans for the L. D. S. church grounds at Independence, Missouri.

At present Mr. Hansen is on a tour of northern Utah, answering calls for aid in city beautification. Ames, May Peterson, J. E. Cardon, S. E. Needham, Allie Clayton, Wm. M. Howell and John Christensen are of J. H. Mose.

He will visit Huntville, Plansville, Rosedale, Wellite and Brigham City. Mr. Hansen's work is being done under the direction of the extension division of the Utah Agricultural College.
